Dean of Students:

I'm appealing the disruptive behavior and services. I see no disturbance as a result of the original post. The disturbance we have witnessed is a result of the edited post seen on live TV, and in numerous news reports before Yik Yak released facts.

This edited post is being ignored and denied. The public and campus community witnessed my face and name in association with an edited post, and another version of the post reported in a number of news sources.

Yik Yak required a subpoena because the post in question did not constitute a threat. It is Yik Yaks policy to release threatening posts without a subpoena or warrant. A post was taken out of context and edited in order to look like a threat. The person or group responsible for this understood the post to be friendly, but edited the original post for their own agenda.

It is unfortunate a hostile environment was created before facts were released by Yik Yak.

Sincerely,

Matthew Schultz

10. Disruptive Behavior. Causing a substantial disturbance or disruption, including without limitation to substantially disturbing or disrupting the use or enjoyment of University premises or the surrounding community, research and teaching, university administration, conduct hearings, or fire, police and emergency services.

27. Services. Unauthorized use, or providing such use to another, of official identification, or of the University's services, programs, facilities, supplies, name, logo, insignia, documents, keys, or permits.
